Headteacher's daily blog

Date: Tuesday 21st April 2020

Dear all,

I hope the first day 'back' has gone well for you all. I am sure it is hard for the children to adapt to a new home learning routine after a long-ish break. I have been having video calls with all the year group teaching teams today to try to discuss how we are supporting the home learning so we can refine and change things where necessary. Your child's class teacher will also make sure they give you another phone call between now and the end of next week. Please note that some staff are ringing from home so you might see 'number withheld' and not realise that someone from school is trying to contact you.

I have attached with this blog two information sheets which have been sent out to Norfolk schools. One is a 'Safer schools newsletter' from Norfolk police and the other is from the NHS giving guidance about when to ring for help if a child is ill.

Finally, we all know you are doing a great job trying to help the home learning process, but the Department for Education has sent out some guidelines to support you further:

Wishing you all the best,
