Hello everyone,

I hope you have all had a good week so far. We only have one more week of school, and then it will be half term. It was very nice to talk to some of you again this week, and for a couple of you that I missed, I will hopefully talk to you next week. It was also really fantastic to get some emails and photos from you in the Language Group emails. My goodness, you are keeping so busy. I would like to use some of your fun ideas at Language Group when we are all back together.

This weekend I have been decorating Darby's bedroom, and guess who decided to come to try and help? Luckily not Chester, but Luca! He was very interested in the paint so we had to quickly take him out before he stepped in it and made blue paw prints all around the house. Darby made some corn flour and water mix to play with today-have you ever done that? You just mix a little water with some corn flour, and see what happens. Is it a liquid? Is it a solid? It does get a bit messy, so you might like to do it outside.

I have been watering the sunflowers regularly, and they are slowly, slowly growing. They are in a nice sunny spot in the garden, and when they get bigger I will dig some holes, (or get Chester to) and put them into the soil so that they can grow even taller. I have added some photos so that you can see which ones are growing the fastest at the moment.

So as we are nearly at the end of this half term, it would be nice for you to have a little celebration like we do at Language Group at the end of term. Perhaps you could sit with your family for a little snack, and think about something you have enjoyed doing at home this half term. I know it has been a strange half term not being at school, but from talking to you I know that you are all doing a great job of keeping busy, and finding lots of fun activities to do at home. Perhaps you would like to ask your grown ups or siblings what things they have enjoyed over the last few weeks. If you were to ask me, I think I would say that I have enjoyed taking Chester for walks at the UEA with the boys. Now that we are allowed to meet one person, this week I met Mrs Spence with her dogs Maggie and Betty for a walk in the woods. Chester was very excited to see them, and I think Maggie and Betty were pleased too.

Enjoy your week children, we miss you all and look forward to seeing you when we can.

Mrs Beveridge
